Autumn edition

Highlights from the summer edition now being sent to all members

A new hand on the wheel

Over recent years our station has experienced a steady growth in both our local and overseas listeners. In order to improve the smooth running of the station, the Management Committee have endorsed Kay Masters as a salaried, limited-hours station manager for a trial period of six months. Beginning early in January, the appointment is already providing dividends to our volunteers with new ideas being activated. Kay will now be a central contact point at the station to provide more efficient and expanded operations.

Sponsorship agent

CCR has entered into a contractual arrangement with John Thorpe as its dedicated representative with the task of maintaining the station's income stream. Any member with a sponsorship lead should contact John direct by phone on 0481 064 026 or 6196 2245, or by email at jthorpe@outlook.com.au

The Graduates

The latest crop of new voices at the station on both its tele and micro phones have emerged from the Wireless Hill University for Broadcasting Techniques ready to entertain and inform CCR's growing number of listeners. Amongst the latest group of producers and presenters to emerge from this broadcaster's boot camp as highly skilled volunteers with a new career direction were;

Richard Eddy

Maggie Mann

Lorne Nichols

Greg Salt

Chris Wayne

Jack Smith

All with interesting careers before volunteering at CCR. Find out their stories in the Autumn edition.

Moving out into the community

Over Christmas and into January our outside broadcast team were kept busy at local events and recording a series of radio plays relating to Western Australian history.

Meanwhile, back at the studio, our presenters were receiving phone calls from Al Jolson. No, this is not being written by a ghost writer! Read about all the scary stuff in the Autumn edition.

Our Station Spy

What has become known around the station as 'The Great Cockroach Caper' occurred during January as regular listeners to Swinging Down the Lane will attest.

About to begin his programme, a presenter who shall remain nameless – mainly because everyone at the station and readers of CC already know who it is – was confronted by a massive – it grows with every telling – cockroach which ran across the desk. The resulting commotion certainly brought the listeners to attention as the microphone had inadvertently been left open.

This un-rehearsed piece of popular programming was attributed to the despicable eating habits of the station's nocturnal nemesis, Conrad the crumb creator.
